Trinity Reaches 40th Birthday!

"I testify it was like an old-fashioned Pentecostal camp meeting everyday. The students began a Sunday School in the park and lead several souls to Christ."

These words, by Trinity's first dean — W.H. Kessler — tell the story of Trinity's first class in 1948. The college was then named Lakewood Park Bible School and located in Devils Lake, North Dakota.

Kessler continued, "We wish to praise God for the spirit of revival that prevailed in the school during the entire term!"

That was 40 years ago — and yet the spirit of revival that marked the birth of Trinity then still is alive and well at the college today!

In fact, Trinity hasn't changed much at all in relation to the basic principles on which it was founded: "To prepare young people for full-time ministry or missionary work, to give them the desire to seek and know God and to teach them how to harvest souls for the kingdom."

We remember Rev. L.E. Englar, a pastor in Stanley, North Dakota, who had the first vision of Trinity. He presented the idea to the North Dakota District Presbyters in the summer of

18 Students In First Class

1948 — and the college was born! When the doors opened that fall, 18 students enrolled.

There were students like Ruth Dawson, and the history books say her motto was, "A giggle a day keeps the doctor away." And students like Dean Paulson, of whom his classmates wrote, "He has a tie assortment that will make your eyes blink."

Those early years were a simple in many ways, touched with a yearning for

God and a sense of humor. The only complicated thing, one might say, was the name of some courses. You could sign up for "Soteriology" (doctrine of salvation) or Pneumatology (the study of spiritual beings or phenomena). But on second thought, today's students still take Hermeneutics (scriptural interpretation) and Pentateuch (the five books of Moses).

You see, Trinity hasn't changed much.

The 50's would be exciting and growing years for Trinity — and would produce some outstanding graduates:

Floyd Beckstrand, class of '52, who is now pastor of Finley Assembly of God in Finley, North Dakota, and Silas Liechty, class of '53, who is president of Liechty Mobile Homes, Inc., in Jamestown, North Dakota, and one of Trinity's Board of Directors.

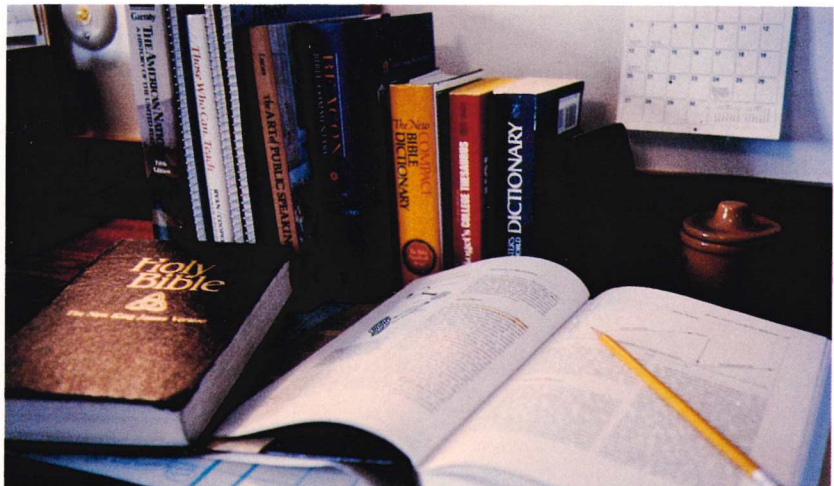

By 1960, enrollment had reached 44 students and administrators sought for a larger campus. A church in Aberdeen, South Dakota, had recently constructed a building designed for educational purposes and was looking for a tenant. This became Trinity's new home, and the college was renamed Hub City Bible Institute. (Aberdeen was known as the "Hub City" of the Dakotas. The school's slogan was, "Located in the heart of the Dakotas with a heart for the youth of the Dakotas.")

The class of 1960 had two graduates who would become well-known evangelists across the United States and on television — and eventually lead Trinity. You guessed it —

President and Mrs. Lowell Lundstrom. Student Ministries began moving along fast then — at least as fast as any old Chevy Sheasta could go.

The Bible lies next to this textbook for a purpose. At Trinity the textbooks and God's Word go hand in hand for class work and personal devotions. The Bible is an important part of the curriculum at Trinity but there is also a big emphasis on making the Word a living part of students' lives.

Wead Becomes First President

Costs looked a little better then, with one semester's tuition at $175, board at $160 and room at $90.

In those days, there were no electives, and students had to take every subject offered. One afternoon each week, students had to engage in ministry work at nursing homes or jails.

A faculty member at Hub City, Doris Nixon, spoke this past year on campus and today serves as a missionary to American Indians.

The student population continued to grow at Hub City more than board directors had imagined — in fact, enough to demand the need for another new facility.

In the fall of 1967, with 197 students, Trinity relocated at the former Trinity Hospital in Jamestown, North Dakota. The school logically became named, "Trinity Bible Institute."

In 1968, the college's rapid growth called for a full-time president to take charge. From South Bend, Indiana, would come one of the most influential men in the history of

The Million Dollar Miracle!

Trinity — Dr. Roy H. Wead.

That summer, Wead wrote to Trinity students home on break, "These are exciting times! We are looking forward to the big day of the year, September 27, when you all will be back home with us at TBI."

Meanwhile, Wead faced what was now a typical problem for Trinity — overcrowding. He began an intense hunt to find a new campus.

His visionary genius and political ties enabled him to secure the former branch campus of the University of North Dakota in Ellendale, North Dakota — Trinity's current location.

The money to purchase the campus could have come right from a pauper's pocket. In a move that would later be called a "multi-million dollar miracle," Wead bought the $4 million, 28-acre campus, with its six major buildings — including a 65,000 volume library — for $1!

Yearbooks then tell about the revival "fires" that swept the campus: "The power of God struck TBI this year as lightning strikes a tree."

In 1982, Pastor Ron Hastie of Peoria, Illinois, replaced Wead. He soon resigned and in 1983, the board of directors appointed Evangelist Lowell Lundstrom as president.

President Lundstrom has met with great success from the start. At the beginning of his term, enrollment was at a serious low of 289 students. By 1986, the student population reached an all-time record high of 550 students.

Because of his influence, Trinity is more dedicated than ever to training Spirit-filled men and women for world-wide evangelism.

Saving the lost was Trinity's goal 40 years ago — and on this special birthday, this God-given commission remains just as important and critical as ever!

The only difference may be that today's students have to move faster — for the night is closer than before!

"We Can Print The Words, But Not The Fire!"

Dear Trinity Students,

Charles Spurgeon was a great pastor and evangelist in London whose sermons burned and blazed with Holy Ghost power.

Thousands turned out to hear this man of God thunder against sin — pointing men and women to the Savior, Jesus Christ.

One day, he was approached by the editor of the "London Times," who asked for permission to print his sermons. (At this time, the paper was distributed worldwide, even though it was delayed in delivery.) Spurgeon turned to the editor and said, "You can print my sermons, but you can't print my fire."

It is very difficult to put into words the wonderful things God has done for us at Trinity this year. We can print the words, but we can't print the fire.

John the Baptist said of Jesus, "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and fire."

The fire is what made Trinity wonderful this year —

- * The fire of the Holy Spirit in our chapel services!
- * The fire of desire in the hearts of our instructors!
- * The spiritual fire that fell upon us as we prayed, sang and worshipped God together.

I pray the fire of God will burn in your heart as long as you live. My friend Carl Malz served as Executive Vice-President of Trinity for four years. I'll never forget what he said while preaching at the Trinity Chapel during "Carl Malz Appreciation Day" last October.

He said for years he's prayed these three prayers daily:

1. Lord, deliver me from evil.
2. Lord, keep your anointing on my life.
3. Lord, lead me in a plain path — show me the way I should go.

Keep the fire burning! Each day, pray the Lord will deliver you from evil, that he will keep His anointing on you and show you His perfect plan for your life! My prayers are with you always!

Sincerely,

Lowell Lundstrom

P.S. Congratulations seniors! We'll miss you. Pray for us, support us and visit often. You are family — and always will be!

The Lundstrom Family enjoys getting together at Christmas: President Lowell Lundstrom, Connie Lundstrom, L.J., son-in-law Mark Hentges, Lance and Londa Hentges.

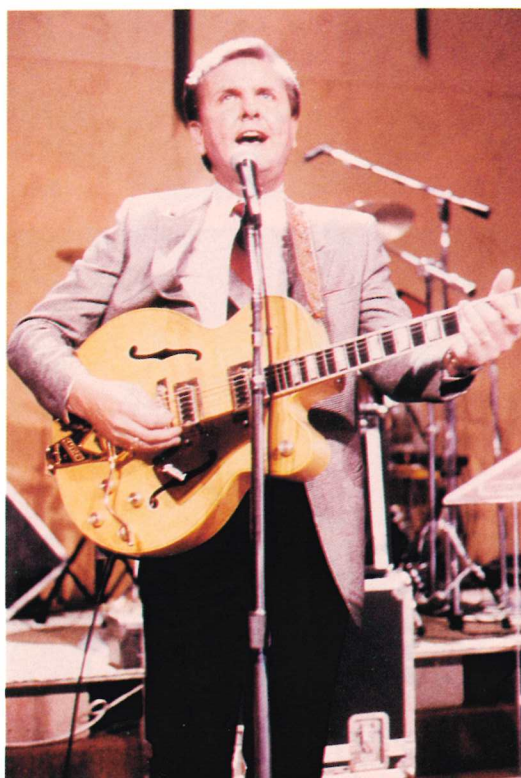

President and Mrs. Lundstrom celebrated 30 years of soul-winning ministry at a special reception in Sisseton, SD, last summer.

Enriching every service with anointed music are the Lundstrom Singers: Mrs. Connie Lundstrom, Mark Shorey, Kari Shorey and Kevin Shorey.

He Has A Heart For The Lost!

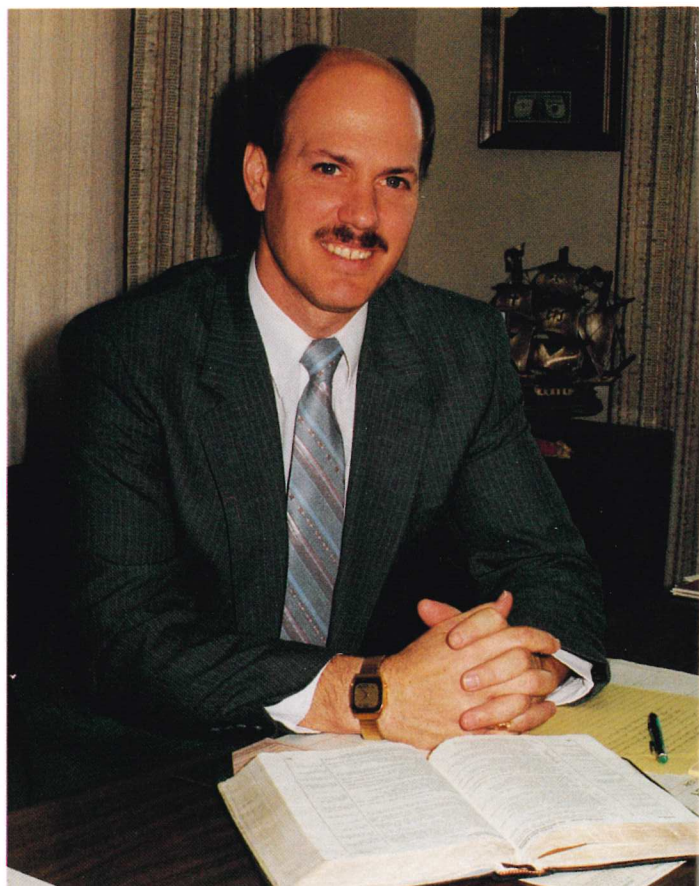

Evangelist Lowell Lundstrom became President of Trinity Bible College in the fall of 1983. His main goal is to make Trinity students soul-winners! President Lundstrom's heart for the lost is reflected in his 30 years of traveling across the nation and around the world preaching the salvation message. The Trinity family loves his leadership and example. President Lundstrom is also a singer, songwriter, author and host of his own weekly television show.

Our President never ceases to amaze us with his many talents. Here he strums the song, "A Mighty Fortress."

He Loves With A Pastor's Heart!

Rev. S. Robert Maddox became Trinity's new Executive Vice-President in July 1987. He is also the pastor of Trinity Campus Church. Before this, he ministered as senior pastor of Calvary Temple Assembly of God in Spearfish, South Dakota. He has pastored throughout the Midwest for 12 years. Vice-President Maddox is a former presbyter of the South Dakota District Black Hills Section and served on Trinity's Board of Directors for a year. He has a pastor's heart, and his messages challenge the Trinity family to be all they can be in Christ. He says: "With every message I preach, I try to be sensitive to the Holy Spirit and hope that people achieve a deeper awareness of God's presence and power in their lives!"

SPIRITUAL LIFE

Are You Ready to Listen?

Dynamic Guest Speakers Visit Trinity!

Four times a week, when the bell rings at 9:20 a.m., Trinity students get ready to attend another life-changing service in the campus chapel.

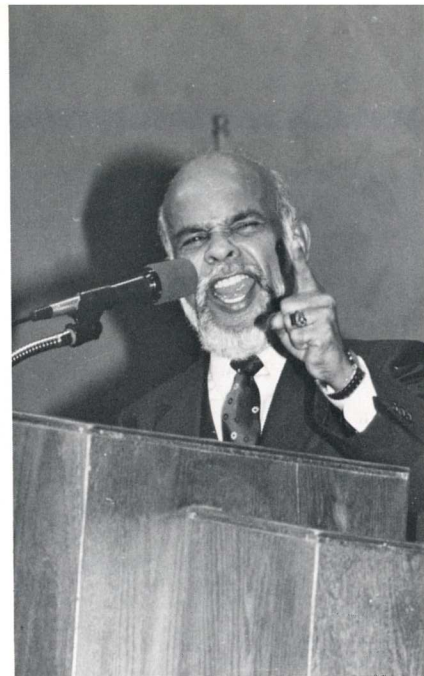

The past year, guest speakers came from all over the nation and world — pastors, educators, missionaries, evangelists, D-Caps and superintendents. These Godly role models delivered dynamic messages that transformed many students' hearts and souls.

It was during these special moments that many students felt the call of God on their lives — to the pastorate, to the mission field, to the lost and dying at home and abroad.

This page and the next provide just a sampling of the many powerful personalities who honored us with their time and blessed us with their commitment to God and compassion toward mankind!

"Faith is not what produces results," says John Holmquist, pastor of the Bethel Temple AG in Rapid City, SD. "Faith is what guides us through results."

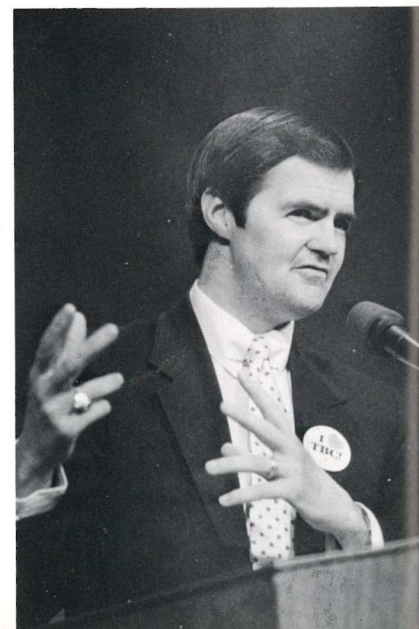

C.S. Wickramaratne, General Superintendent of the Assembly of God in Sri Lanka, combined a strong message with a sense of humor during a chapel service in the fall.

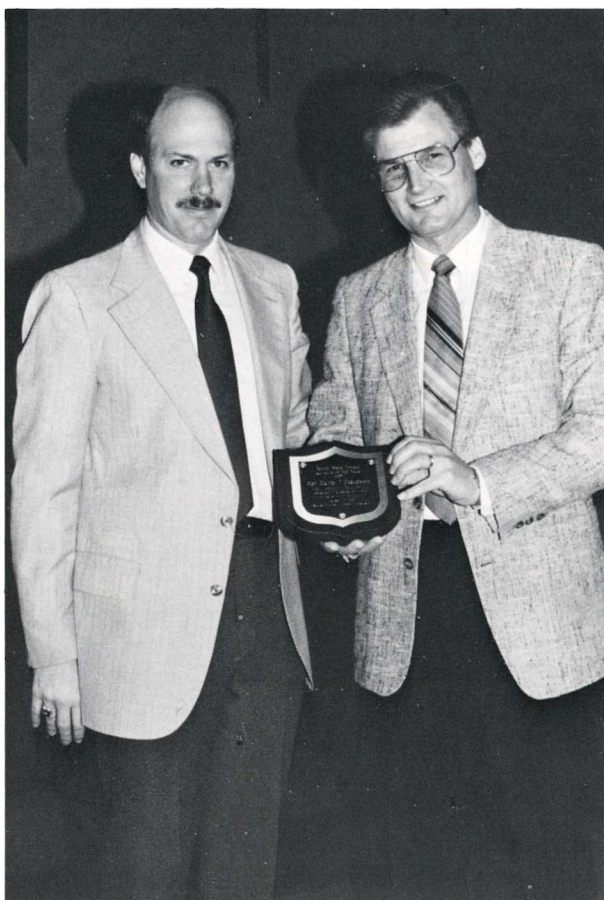

On November 10, Trinity celebrated "Superintendents Day!" The superintendents answered questions for the students and joined them for lunch. They are: Marcus Bakke, ND; David Nelson, SD; Herman Rohde, MN; E.E. Rohde, MT; Allan Ullestad, IA and James Wilkins, NE.

Right: Lonnie Titus, Secretary of Trinity's Board of Directors, exhorts students to enter a place of prayer beyond the devotional life.

Powerful evangelist and orator Paul Border speaks simply and profoundly, as he shares three special messages, "Who is God?," "Who is Christ?" and "Who Are We?"

Chapel Guests Bring Messages Straight From The Heart!

Fall College Days Has It All!

The theme was "Touchdown to Victory" — and Fall College Days '87, September 24 & 25, scored a lot of points with prospective students visiting the campus.

The special musical guest was Barry McGuire, who calls Christian music "the greatest music I've ever sung in my life! It breathes, it flies, it rocks, it sings. It's living music!"

The hosts for the Pastors and Wives Seminar, entitled, "Strengthening Today's Youth Leaders," were Rev. Keith Elder, D-Cap for the Montana District, and Rev. Larry Liebe, D-Cap for the Wisconsin/Northern Michigan District. They discussed topics such as "Developing a Youth Program" and "Dealing with Sensitive Issues" (like incest and abortion).

Trinity Executive Vice-President S. Robert Maddox gave visitors tips on how to lead a worship service.

Evangelist Lowell Lundstrom, Trinity President, and his wife Connie hosted the event, with the Lundstrom Singers ministering in song.

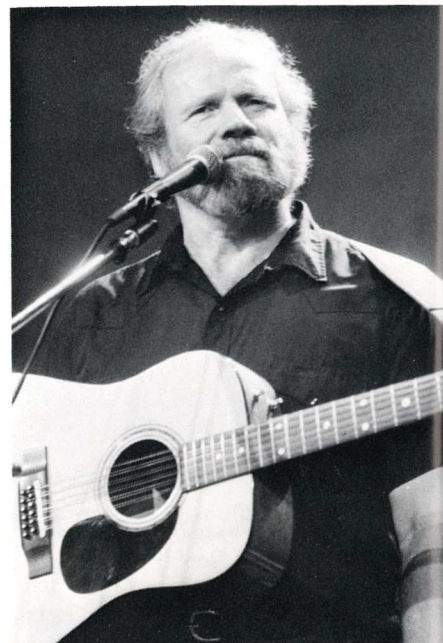

Every College Days is blessed with the fine voices of the Lundstrom Singers. Here, Kari Shorey glorifies the Lord in song!

During chapel service, President Lowell Lundstrom uses a glass of cranberry juice and Steve Slater to illustrate the joy of "drinking in" God's presence.

Keith Elder, D-Cap of Montana and one of the hosts of the Pastors and Wives Seminar, shares two important messages with visiting youth pastors.

Musical guest Barry McGuire is an emotional man who presents an emotional concert. Throughout presentation, he smiles, laughs, cries and speaks word or two that the Lord lays on his heart!

A little humor during the final event — "Saturday Night Alive" — turns into a big laugh when "Eunice and the Spinsters" hit the stage. The ladies are: Lori Langellers, Paula Trentz, Donita Hostetler, Crystal Leuthold, Jean Ady and Becky Alldridge.

College Days '88 Hard To Top!

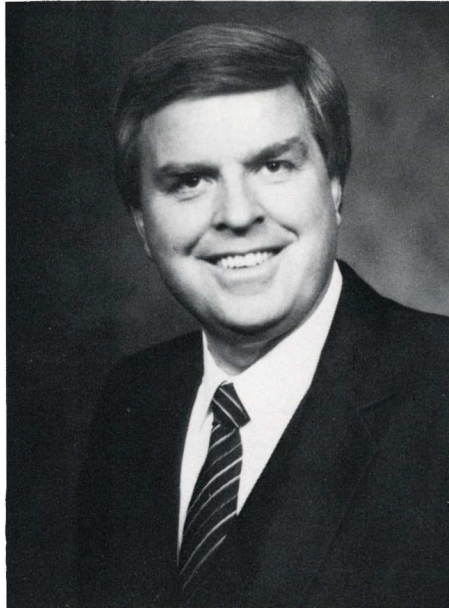

It's hard to top something that's great, like Jessie Dixon performing live in concert and Harold Carter preaching fervently in the chapel.

This is why both men — previous College Days' guests — got an invitation to return for Spring College Days '88, April 7 & 8!

Joining Carter for the Pastors and Wives Seminar was Rev. Robert Schmidgald, an Executive Presbyterian in the General Council of the Assemblies of God and founding pastor of Calvary Temple in Naperville, Illinois.

His energy is just about unmatched among Christian musicians — this is one reason students and guests came to hear Jessie Dixon's live concert.

Trinity was honored to have Robert Schmidgald, an executive presbyter of the Assemblies of God, as host of the Pastors and Wives Seminar.

Dr. Harold Carter is a tremendous orator and man of God. His visit as guest host of the Pastors and Wives Seminar marked his second "College Days" appearance within a year.

A number of prospective students and guests, along with Trinity students, answer President Lowell Lundstrom's altar call during the Friday morning service.

"For God So Loved . . . Shouldn't We?"

Trinity President Lowell Lundstrom often says, "There are five billion people in the world and only two billion have heard of Jesus Christ — that means there are three billion people to reach!"

This is the reason Trinity sponsors two missions conventions a year — to make students aware of the need to spread the Gospel — and to discover if God is calling them to the mission field, at home and abroad.

The theme for the Fall Missions Convention, October 29 & 30, 1987, was, "For God So Loved . . . Shouldn't We?" The special guest speaker was G. Edward Nelson, who is Secretary of the Assemblies of God Foreign Missions Department and oversees 1,464 AG missionaries in 118 world countries.

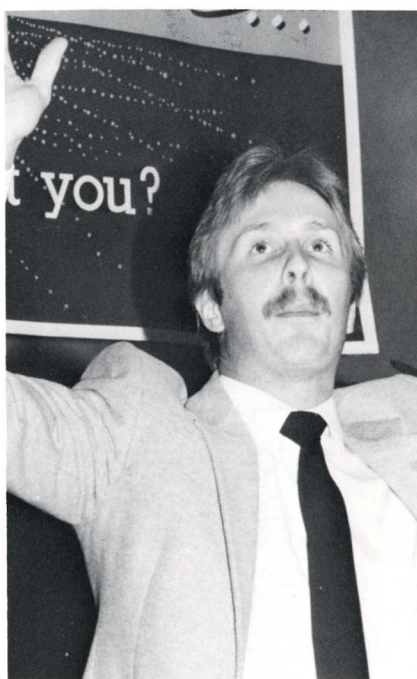

"The world needs God's love, and we are called to deliver the message," Nelson said. "Just as God loved us enough to give His Son, we need to love enough to give ourselves and release our resources for world evangelism."

"Last year 330,000 gave their lives for the Gospel of Jesus Christ," says convention speaker G. Edward Nelson.

For God so loves music that glorifies His Son Jesus. Here, sophomores Chris Jankov and Martha Riojas lift up the Name above all names!

After each service, Nelson prays with students and answers any personal questions they have.

Trinity's student musicians added a powerful sound to this week long event. The players are: Sam Perez, Harvey Macklin, Barry Bishop, Tom Opperman, Darrell Friesen and Evan Habben.

"I appreciate the missions emphasis of Trinity," said convention guest speaker John York.

God's Army Winning The World

"You've heard the song — "God's got an army, marching through this land, deliverance is their song, there's healing in their hands, everlasting joy and gladness in their hearts, and in this army I've got a part."

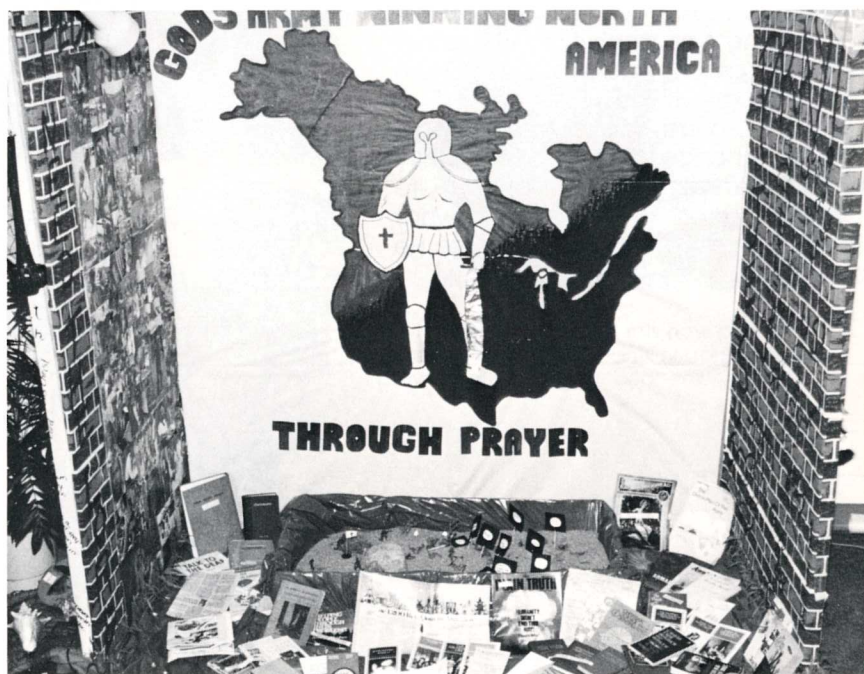

Trinity students had a big part in the Spring Missionary convention — "God's Army Winning The World," held January 31 through February 4.

Keynote speaker Morris Williams, a missionary for 40 years in Africa, told the students, "There are 'gonna do it' doers and 'do my own thing' doers, but the Lord is looking for people who will say, 'God, where there is a need, send me.'"

Other guest speakers included Airforce Chaplain Gary Carlson, who's ministered in Guam and Spain; John York, missionary to Nigeria and Gladys Myrick, Trinity's new Missionary-in-Residence.

The winning banner at the convention was North America's — "God's Army Winning North America through Prayer!"

This year's winner of the banner, booth and badge competitions was North America.

Prayer — An Invitation Worth Accepting

Rev. Lonnie Titus, the secretary of Trinity's Board of Directors, addressed students in the fall and invited them to take on a spiritual goal that very much became a major theme for the year. He said, "There is a place of prayer, beyond the devotional life, where you don't want to come out — that's when you've entered the Holy of Holies."

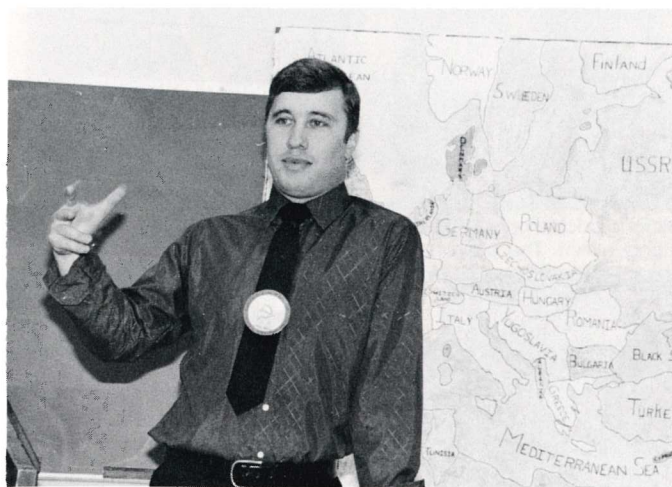

Many guest speakers who came to Trinity's chapel encouraged the students to build and strengthen their prayer and devotional lives. Students were eager to respond — for praying is nothing new at Trinity.

In every dorm, every night, you'll find young men and women seeking God in the "Gap" (special prayer rooms), at chapel prayer vigils and at Prayer Bands, where students band together in various groups and pray for missionaries throughout the world.

It may sound too simple to say, "Prayer changes things." But Trinity students know a good prayer life means a good life, no matter what God has in store, no matter where He calls them.

Senior Linda Brower lays her petitions at the altar before God.

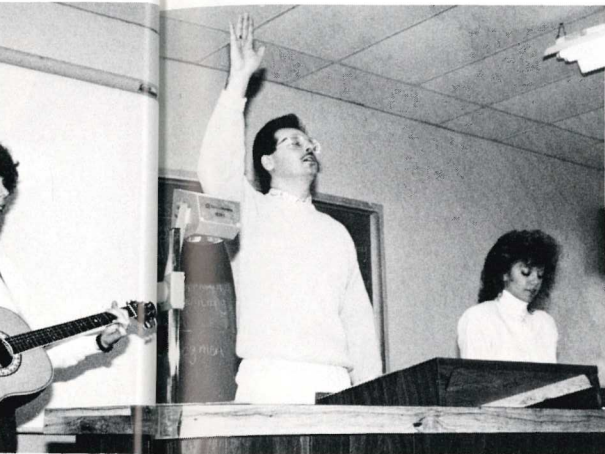

Junior Lonnie Moeller leads a discussion in the Europe/Near East Prayer Band.

Trinity students and faculty cry out in prayer for missionaries in Asia.

Trinity Is A Place Of Prayer

Students like junior Julianne Opatz and sophomores Kevin Opatz and Charmaine Pettet, lead the way in prayer for missionaries around the world in Prayer Bands.

Daily chapel services begin with glorious praise and worship. Sophomore David Meixl forgets about himself and concentrates on the Lord.

Left: Kara Pierce seeks God in the quiet and solitude of "The Gap" prayer room in Davidson Hall.

Trinity reinforces to students how prayer changes things. Freshman Christopher Bruce prays silently during an altar call.

A Place For All At Sunday School

She can sing, work with puppets and teach a lesson all at the same time. That's why kids love having freshman Mary Dunning at the head of the class!

Esther Zink and husband Dave lead the Sunday School Breakfast Club — a class that helps bring married couples closer to God and each other.

Looking a little tired after a day in the Children's Church is Krista Vanklompburg.

A serious message from the pulpit at Trinity Campus Church is reflected in these student faces.

Sophomore Michelle Rondeau teaches Christian principles to grades four five and six. What these children learn in Sunday School lays a solid foundation in the Word of God and instills in them the kind of person God wants them to be.

Husband and wife team Yolanda and Eugene Blair learn more about each other during one of the Breakfast Club Sunday School sessions for married couples.

Trinity students are serious about the Word of God — there's hardly a Bible left unopened during a chapel or Sunday morning service.

Trinity Campus Church Feels A Lot Like Home

You've heard it said that, "Home is where the heart is," and that's certainly true of Trinity Campus Church — our home church and a welcome place for hungry hearts.

The church offers a little bit for everyone — beginning at 9:30 a.m. are adult Sunday school classes in the chapel and cafeteria, along with classes for ages four through high school.

At 10:30, Pastor S. Robert Maddox or Associate Pastor Dan Kuno offer powerful messages that have caused the church family to grow strong in faith and love.

Worshipping God here is not a one-day deal, but a way of life! There's the Sunday night service, the Wednesday night prayer service, and the long hours the chapel is set aside each day for personal devotions.

The Trinity Campus Church Staff; Paul Hamelink (Music Minister), Dr. Dayton Kingsriter (Christian Education Director), S. Robert Maddox (Senior Pastor), Dan Kuno (Associate Pastor) and Roger Willis (Youth Pastor).

Entertaining the youngsters with a Christian message is freshman Michelle Schindler.

Youth At Church Bring Life And Laughter!

It's often hard to top what young people can bring to a church — a freshness, a newness, an innocence of surrender worth watching and following.

Trinity Campus Church loves its youth and plans programs to help them grow in the knowledge and grace of God. The Missionettes and Royal Rangers are active here, giving young boys and girls a little challenge and discipline, plus the wisdom to know what a Christian is and how to be the best Christian they can be.

The youth program for junior high and high school students offers plenty of opportunities for Christian growth.

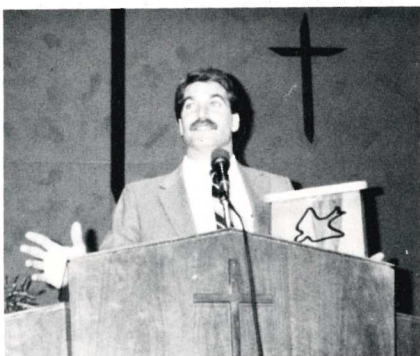

The teens attend weekly educational classes, Bible quiz competitions and summer camps. They sing solos or in a group at the campus church. They also make up the Silas Midnight Players, a drama group that acts out a humorous message with a good, hard-hitting Gospel truth!

Trinity freshman Beth West explains the construction of the Old Testament tabernacle to the Missionettes. Looking on is leader Jill Holm.

For the youth group, many meetings being with a hand-clapping, joyful song to energize and uplift the teenagers.

Music Groups — A Major Plus!

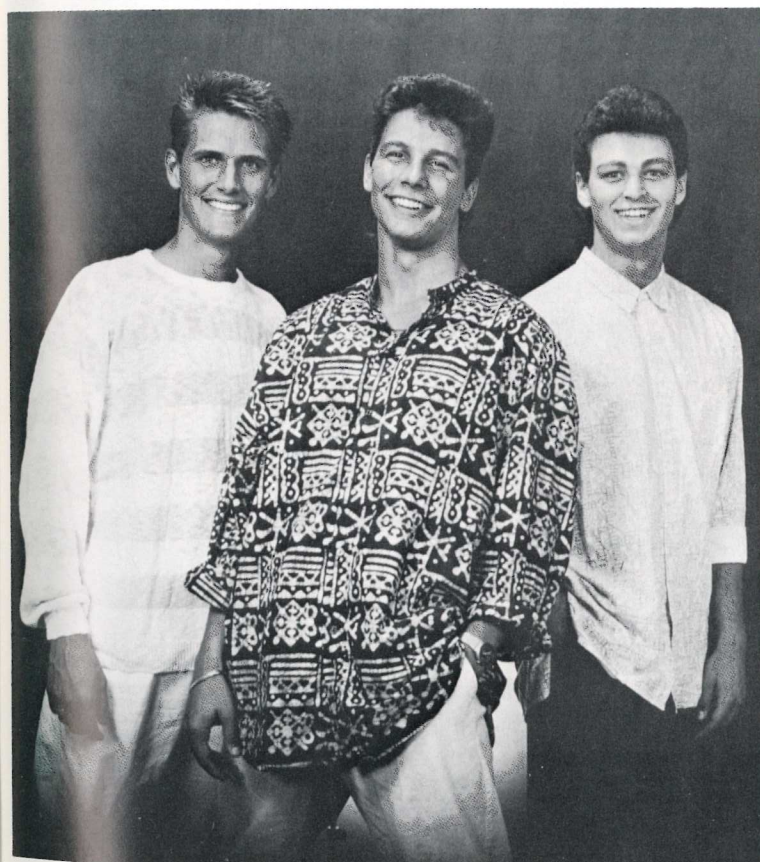

Trinity students love to spread the Gospel — and one of the best ways to do it is with a song!

Every year, the college's four music groups minister to thousands of people at churches, Bible camps and youth rallies throughout the Midwest. Hundreds come to know Jesus as Lord and Savior!

Senior Lisa Leick of "The Redemption Singers" says, "I always wanted to sing about the love of Jesus. Hearing songs of praise is one of the biggest needs people have today. I feel our music and words should show Christ's love — and reach out to people's hurts!"

"Reflections:" sophomore Nola Weber and freshmen Todd Forest, Shelley Freyre, Steven Rydin and Shae Poe.

The "LKM Trio:" juniors Greg Long and Curtis Knight and senior Rick McGraw.

There was glory, honor and praise as members of the "Redemption Singers" lifted their voices heavenward. The singers are senior Lisa Leick, sophomore Martha Riojas and junior Joanne Schmele.

Chapel Choir — A Class Act!

When choir director Annette Willis raises her hands, 51 Trinity students take a deep breath and wait for the music to begin. But they aren't the only ones.

The members of Trinity Campus Church hold their breath, too, for the beautiful arrangements given by these young sopranos, altos, tenors and basses.

Often the choir sings up front on the platform. Many prefer voices streaming from the balcony — floating high and above, sounding like a little bit of heaven.

The choir's Christmas Cantata, entitled, "The Glory of the Lord," was a highlight performance for Trinity Campus Church. The choir sang many Christmas classics and the evening ended in praise and worship to the Coming King!

Choir Director Annette Willis directs the college's vocal ensemble with energy and enthusiasm.

Instruments Of Praise Makes A Joyful Noise!

You'd think they'd been practicing for years and all played in the same high school band or something. But the musicians in Instruments of Praise come from backgrounds as diverse as their instruments.

When they're together, which is daily during chapel services, these string-strummers and horn-honkers make their own kind of music, and it sure sounds good with any Gospel tune!

They're volunteers and they don't look for recognition, sitting off to the side in church. But we know who they are, our in-tune friends who make a joyful noise to the Lord — and make us joyful, too!

Ministering From The Heart

Trinity students strive for excellence — and they achieve it! The students had many opportunities this year to minister in music and to preach the Gospel during daily chapel services. This "hands-on" training will make the students better soul-winners for Jesus Christ as they go forth to become tomorrow's pastors, evangelists, missionaries, teachers, musicians and church leaders.

Drama Teams Shine Bright!

Trinity students are action-oriented. They like to go where the soul-winning action is.

Take the Pure Heart Players. They minister to the students in chapel and to churches throughout the Midwest with action — acting out the truths of God's Word, hoping to bless the saved and win the lost.

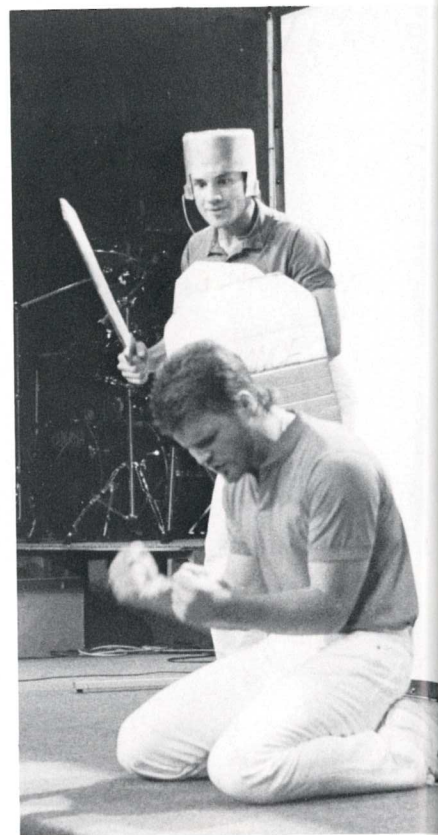

The group's presentations blend a lot of heart with a touch of humor, and this often gets an audience laughing, or crying, to tears.

"Our skits remind Christians not to get trapped in the routine emotions of church life," says junior and team leader Steve McKinney, "but to allow the Holy Spirit at every service to spark the 'fire' within them."

For the first time in Trinity's history, there is more than one drama team. "Proclamation Players" is the newest action on the scene, and with the same goals as the former — spreading the Gospel through the simple word — ACTION!

KTBC (89.3 FM) is Trinity's own radio station — serving the college and the Ellendale community. Student deejays are on the air from Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

KTBC ministers to listeners through Christian music and special programming, including "Focus on the Family," with Dr. James Dobson, and "Insight for Living," with Chuck Swindoll.

Ten students make up the regular broadcast staff and share short devotionals during program breaks. KTBC also broadcasts football and basketball games — live from the football field and gym.

Ministering To The Lost

INDIAN MINISTRY:

"The Lord has blessed the Indian Ministry with a capital 'B,'" says leader John Mustoe, a senior. "We saw people saved and healed," he says.

Mustoe credits the soul-winning victories to the group's dedication to prayer. "We know that God's Word never returns void," he says.

It's a love for hurting people that motivates Mustoe to reach out. "I don't see people as black, white or Indian. I see them as transparent, souls who need the Lord."

STREET MINISTRY:

"I grew up on the streets, which is probably why I have such a burden for the Street Ministry," says leader Rick Langenback.

"When I go out witnessing, the Lord works not only in the lives of passersby, but in my life. Jesus says in Acts 20:35, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive' — I get blessed in the chapel services here, then I want to go and share Christ with others.

"It motivates me to see a person won into the kingdom," he says. "I know what it's like not to have the Lord — and I want every believer to experience the joy of salvation!"

Indian Ministry leader John Mustoe shares his burden for souls.

Before hitting the streets of Mobridge, South Dakota, Tim Walker, Don Selleck, Nyla Torrence and Shelley Freyer offer themselves for service.

Freshman Dean Antonucci shares the Lord with some young teens during a Street Ministry visit to Aberdeen, South Dakota.

Street Ministry Team: Leader Rick Langenback, Pennie Langenback, Beth Bennett, Nyla Torrence, Dean Antonucci, M Appel and Evan Habben.

Junior Rick Langenback is dedicated to winning the lost to Christ.

Senior Ryan Foresman is an active leader of the "Youth Explosion" Ministry.

Discipling Future Leaders

NEW LIFE MINISTRY:

People need the Lord — and teenagers need Jesus! That's the reason "Youth Explosion" is a big hit! The ministry travels to area churches to disciple and inspire members of youth groups. Group leader Ryan Foresman, a senior, says his team helps teens with broken families and alcoholic parents. "We also help youth who are addicted to drugs and alcohol," he says. "We want to get them excited about the Lord so they can go and win their high school friends to Christ."

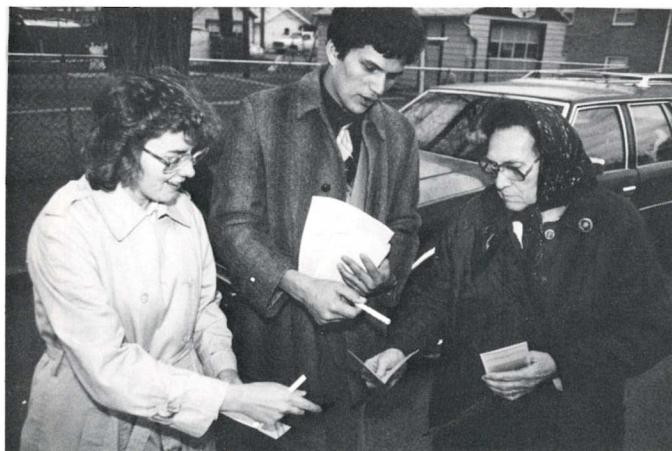

Trinity students unload in front of the Sioux Assembly of God Church on Standing Rock Reservation in Wapala, South Dakota, eager to spread the Good News!

The Indian Ministry: Row One: Debbie Willis, Tina Kramer and Deb Rice. Row Two: Pam Schiller, Linne Rice, Goldie Dodd and Donna Walter. Row Three: June Celley, Joe Brisson, Keene Fuller, Kevin Umphress, Abe Chopper, Evan Habben, John Mustoe and Brenda Domsten.

Sharing the printed and spoken Gospel outside the home of this Mobridge, South Dakota, woman is freshman June Mirgeler and a student from Central Indian Bible College. Trinity students saw many souls saved during the weekend Street Ministry trip.

Ministering To The Elderly

ADOPT-A-GRANDPARENT:

"The elderly are an important part of society, but a neglected part," says sophomore Cathy Stevenson, student coordinator of the Adopt-A-Grandparent Ministry.

The group ministers at the Ellendale Nursing Home and Gold Rule Retirement Home, both in walking distance from the campus.

"We don't just bless them — they bless us, too! We love them and they love in return."

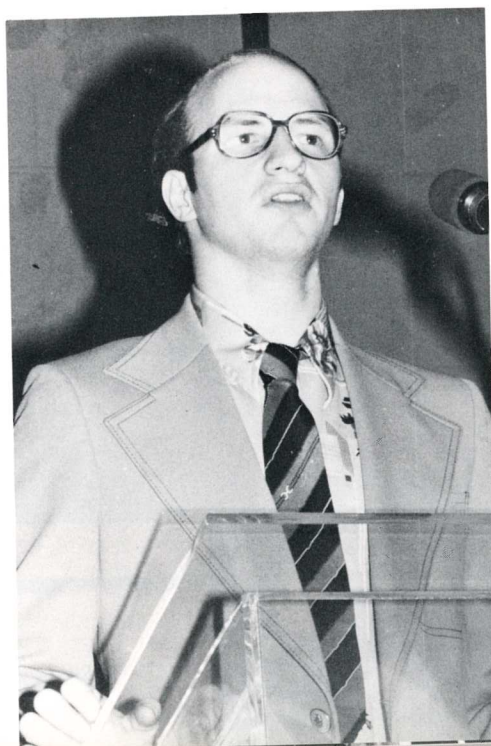

NURSING HOME MINISTRY:

"The elderly are great people," says Nursing Home Ministry leader Tom Arn. "Many elderly have no one — no family to visit them, and we can fill the void in their lives."

Every week, the group travels to Ellendale's two Nursing Homes and conducts a short service.

"We then fellowship with the men and women," Arn says. "We listen to their needs and pray with them."

The leader of the Nursing Home Ministry, sophomore Tom Arn, exhorts the student body during a weekday worship service to come out and visit the elderly.

Above: The Adopt-A-Grandparent Ministry brings a special closeness between the elderly at area nursing homes and students like Renee Denny.

Sophomore Tom Arn is a good listener — a quality that's needed when visiting the aged and handicapped.

Right: Extending a warm hand and kind words to these patients at the Ellendale Nursing Center is junior Jim Garfield.

The Nursing Home Ministry Team includes: Jim Garfield, Carol Diedrichsen, Gerald Doerr, June Mirgeler, Frank Blodgett, Kim Hoffman and Tom Arn.

Ministering To The Needy

ACTS 29:

Students in "Acts 29" minister to patients at the state hospital in Jamestown, North Dakota. The hospital currently maintains about 600 patients.

The patients have many needs, including drug and alcohol addiction. "This ministry gives you a one-on-one opportunity to comfort the lonely and depressed and to witness for Jesus," says coordinator Roger Siewing, a senior.

PRISON MINISTRY:

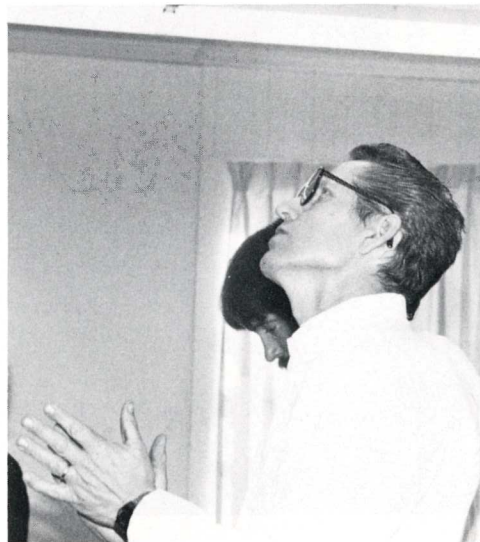

"Today there are 34 young men who know Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior because of Trinity's Prison Ministry," said member Louie Agee, a sophomore. The ministry meets weekly to pray for individuals behind bars. Group leader Marcos Quinones says members pray that God will prepare the hearts of each prisoner to receive the Gospel. "There are people hurting everywhere," says Quinones, "and if we don't tell them, who will?"

These Acts 29 members gather in the chapel to pray for the salvation of patients they have met — and continual healing for those who have been won to Christ.

Never a dull moment when the "on fire" Marcos Quinones is speaking!

Seeking God's guidance and anointing before ministering to prisoners is Louie Agee.

Senior Roger Siewing is the leader of "Acts 29."

Ministering To Society And Teens!

CSSA:

"Christian Students for Social Action (CSSA) is an informative group that makes the student body aware of the different issues that face today's society," says group leader James Meredith, a senior.

"CSSA is concerned about issues such as abortion, alcoholism, suicide, depression and humanism. Our aim is to inform and give students a burden for these kinds of problems so we can reach out and help the lost and the hurting."

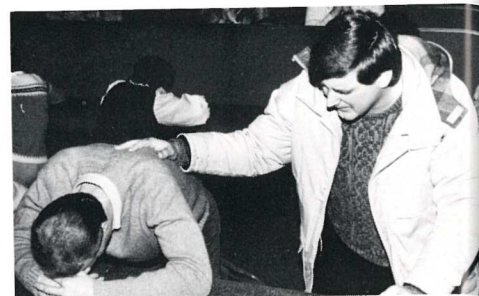

CHI ALPHA:

The Chi Alpha Ministry Team aims to spread the Gospel to secular colleges in the area. "There are 12.5 million students on America's 3,100 college campuses," says group leader John Marstaeller. "We want to help them find Jesus as Lord and Savior — it's a great mission field.

"We want to be harvesters on these campuses," adds Marstaeller. "It's up to God to give the increase, but we must sow the seeds!"

Tamara Smithson gets a little help from Elizabeth Bennett as she climbs aboard the Chi Alpha van, headed for North Dakota State School of Science.

CSSA President James Meredith addresses students in chapel about the value of taking part in the CSSA ministry.

In the spring, CSSA sponsored a faculty debate on humanism, inviting students to take part.

The Christian Students for Social Action officers are vice president Jeffrey Wickstrom, adviser and instructor Keith Agee and president James Meredith.

The Chi Alpha Team: Steve Howard, Linde Rice, Evan Habben, Joe Heit, Ethan Trower, Jeff Wickstrom, Scott Williams, Sherri Harms, Dennis Quinell, June Mergeler and John Marstaeller.

Freshman Tammy Moss discovers getting the attention of this children's choir is no easy task. The group sang to the church in December.

During the children's Christmas program, "Animal" (left) shares a laugh with his puppet friend — in case you haven't guessed it — Trinity's Executive Vice-President!

Ministering To The Children!

CHILDREN'S MINISTRY:

Children's Ministry has two goals: First, to win children to the Lord. Second, to strengthen the commitment of youngsters who already know Christ.

The ministry team travels to different churches in the area, sharing the Gospel and ministering to children through puppet shows, story telling and music.

"I like being able to minister to kids and learn how to relate to them at the same time," says group leader Scott Dunning, a junior. "It's been a rewarding experience for me!"

Puppeteer and freshman Dean Antonucci looks a little attached to his ministry partner, whose name he would not divulge.

Six Weeks In Brazil!

During the summer of 1987, 18 Trinity students packed their bags and boarded a plane to Brazil. The group spent six weeks as missionaries, ministering in churches throughout Porto Alegre, Cantinas and Rio De Janeiro. Because of their outreach, 1,000 people were saved or rededicated their lives to Jesus Christ!

"I never thought I wanted to be a missionary," says senior Sherrie Sealy. "But Brazil changed all of that. While in Campinas, we stopped at an orphanage. I couldn't believe anyone would give these precious children up. I thought, 'I wouldn't mind being a missionary here and raising young orphans in the knowledge and salvation of Jesus Christ!'"

During one of the services, God poured out His spirit upon these young boys, as senior Sam Perez prayed with them.

Senior Carol Elmgren ministered to the natives with the sweet sounds of the flute.

Biblical Studies — Learning And Living The Word

Every Bachelor of Arts degree must include a major in Biblical Studies. The Bible is the foundation of Christian education, and instills in every student's heart the need for local and worldwide evangelism. Dr. Edward Strang, a Bible/Theology instructor, says, "God's truth stimulates, and I want to engage students in a learning process that will change their lives. Every student must become a bearer of God's Word and develop a Christ-likeness in himself and others." The well-rounded courses within the Biblical Studies major enhance spiritual maturity and prepare the student not only for ministry — but for life!

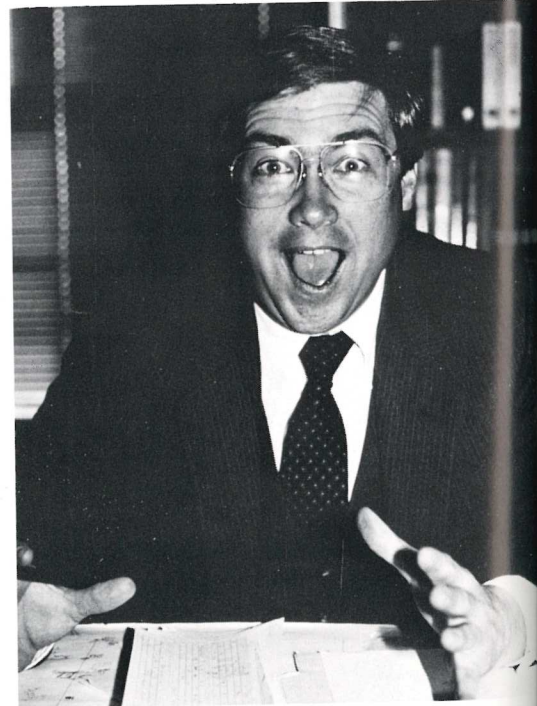

An authority in the Old Testament, Norm Shuert is an instructor for courses including "Old Testament Survey" and "Pentateuch."

Biblical Studies instructor David Jones not only teaches "Homiletics I" but enjoys delivering a message in the chapel from time to time.

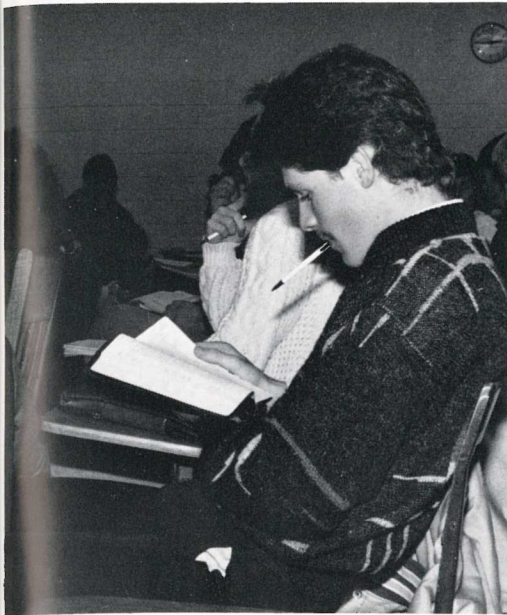

These Trinity students, staff and faculty members took part in the "Come Alive" Evangelism Outreach program developed by visiting evangelist Paul Border. Row One: Jodi Smith, Goldie Dodd, Linda Corrigan, Lisa Snell, Brenda Domsten, June Mirgeler and Patricia Dando. Row Two: Todd Leininger, Tim Drumhiller, Larry Agee, Frank Blodgett, Louie Agee and LeAnn Matous. Row Three: Instructor Sam Brelo, Rory Kallappa, Rick Olson, Student Ministries Director Dan Kuno, Evangelist Paul Border and Mike Swisher.

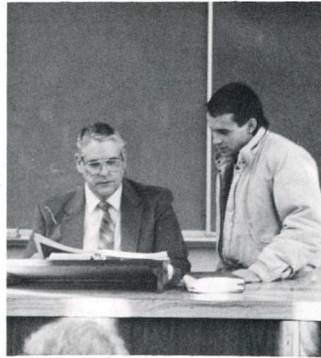

Blending a Biblical knowledge with a sense of humor, instructor Steve Tvedt, who's also the Dean of Students, teaches many freshmen the secrets of college and spiritual life.

Ministerial — Getting Ready To Preach The Gospel

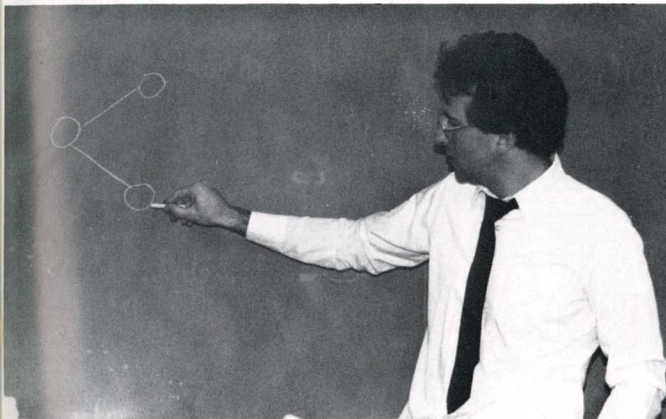

Students who want to pursue a ministry as a pastor or evangelist can take the Ministerial major, which is combined with the Biblical Studies major. This program helps strengthen and fulfill God's call on students' lives to spread the Gospel and win souls for the Kingdom! Bible/Theology instructor Keith Agee says, "I want Trinity students entering the pastorate to preach the Word of God with integrity. They need to study and know the Bible so they not only can nurture a congregation, but instruct it with solid teaching."

Freshman T.J. Shockley chews a little on the Word and on his pen in "Old Testament Survey."

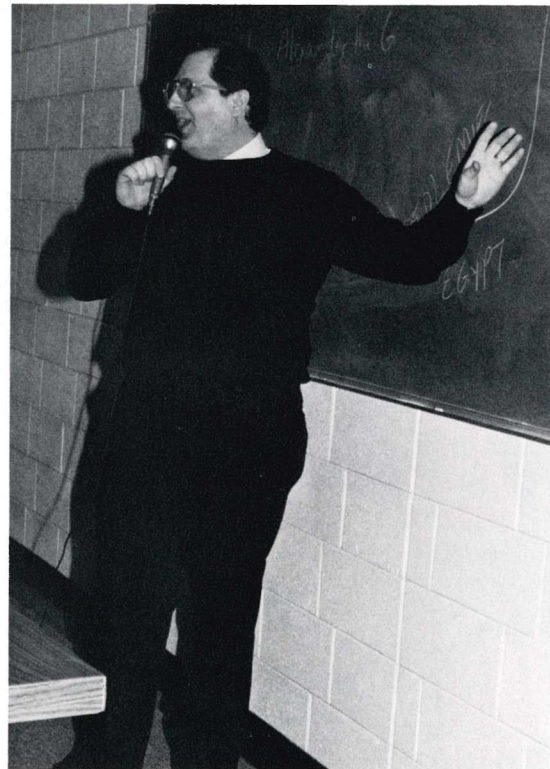

Instructor David Jones is always ready to answer questions — this time it's sophomore Allen Crutchfield who gets the answer.

Sam Brelo uses a diagram to discuss the doubling process of the Evangelism Explosion Program in "Personal Evangelism" class.

Instructor Norm Shuert addresses just one of the many questions asked in "Christian Doctrine" class.

Enjoying the challenge of reviewing the acts of the apostles in "Acts" class is instructor Keith Agee.

Elementary Education — Preparing Shepherds For Tomorrow's Youth

"Trinity graduates who become teachers can win souls in the classroom by letting others see the light of Christ in them," says Elementary Education instructor Judy Cochran, who spent more than 11 years teaching first through sixth grade. "Preaching doesn't always work, but getting students to trust you is the first step in leading them to the Lord. It's the evangelistic approach to education." The Elementary Education major, combined with the Biblical Studies major, provides students with a solid Bible background and courses that will qualify them to teach in Christian or secular schools. All education courses are taught by highly-qualified professors with "hands-on" teaching experience.

In "Teaching Reading I," instructor Judy Cochran explains the day's lesson plan to junior Lyn Domsten.

Instructor Lavonne Larson explains the three domains of learning in "Foundations of Education."

Paula Trentz, who plans to be an Elementary Education teacher, studies her textbook on developing reading skills for youths.

Business — Adding Up To What Counts For Christ

"I want to see Trinity graduates become good business managers and leaders. No matter where they go, they'll be testimony for the Lord," says Robert Hessling, instructor in Business Management. The Associates of Arts Degree in Business, with an emphasis in Office Administration or Business Management, is a two-year program. It combines courses in Biblical Studies, General Education and Business. Students wanting to serve the Lord in a church or secular office administration or entry level management position, find the Business minor a great challenge.

"Principles of Accounting I" instructor LeRoy Kirschenmann gets his message across to students more clearly with the aid of an overhead projector.

Above: Business instructor Ermalene Bentz is the longest serving faculty member in her department. Bentz teaches courses such as "Business Math," "Office Procedures" and "Intermediate Typing."

Left: Ready to hand students some good news (and maybe some bad news) is "Principles of Economics" instructor Robert Hessling.

Missions — Evangelists Going Out Hand-In-Hand

Trinity will offer a new Missions major, effective next fall. According to Academic Dean Dr. Dayton Kingsriter, the Missions major is the result of student demand and Evangelist Lowell Lundstrom's emphasis on evangelism. "A Missions major fits into the overall perspective of the college," says Kingsriter. The 35 credit major includes courses like "Introduction to Missions," "History of Missions," "Missionary Church Planting and Growth" and "World Religions." Students will still be able to sign up for the minor in Missions currently offered.

Dr. Edward Strang takes a break from his "Cultural Anthropology" class to smile for the camera.

Lavonne Larson not only teaches missions courses but is in charge of the many missions-related events on campus each semester.

Aside from teaching "Greek I & II," and "Biblical Studies/Ministerial" courses, Norm Shuert also instructs "Theology of Missions."

Music — We're Singing His Special Songs

Trinity students with a desire to study music can take the Music minor, which is combined with a Biblical Studies major. The minor equips each student for various forms of Christian service in the church, including a minister of music, worship leader, choir director and vocalist. "Music is an important part of a church ministry," says Music instructor Jane Garfield, who recently received her M.A. in Music Education from Kearney State College in Kearney, Nebraska. "I want Trinity students to be good musicians, appreciate good music, and for those who receive church positions, to improve the quality of songs offered to God."

Music instructor Jane Garfield looks on as sophomore Mona LaValley proves that practice makes perfect!

Music Department Chairman Paul Hamelink teaches several music classes and conducts private lessons. Here, he sings a solo in the chapel.

Christian Education — Ready To Share God's Truths

"Good Christian education is the arm of the church, and yet so many youths and adults in churches today need to be grounded in the Word. We need good teachers in Christian and secular schools who know the Scriptures and can be a strong voice for Christ," says Christian Education instructor Amy Strang. For students interested in serving in a church's Christian Education Department — the Christian Education minor — along with the Biblical Studies major, provides the best preparation. Students in this program may continue on to graduate school.

Instructor Roy Reese presents powerful lectures in his courses, which include "American History I" and "Organization & Administration of C.E."

Christian Education instructor Roy Reese is dedicated to his students. He's often at the altar praying for students with special needs.

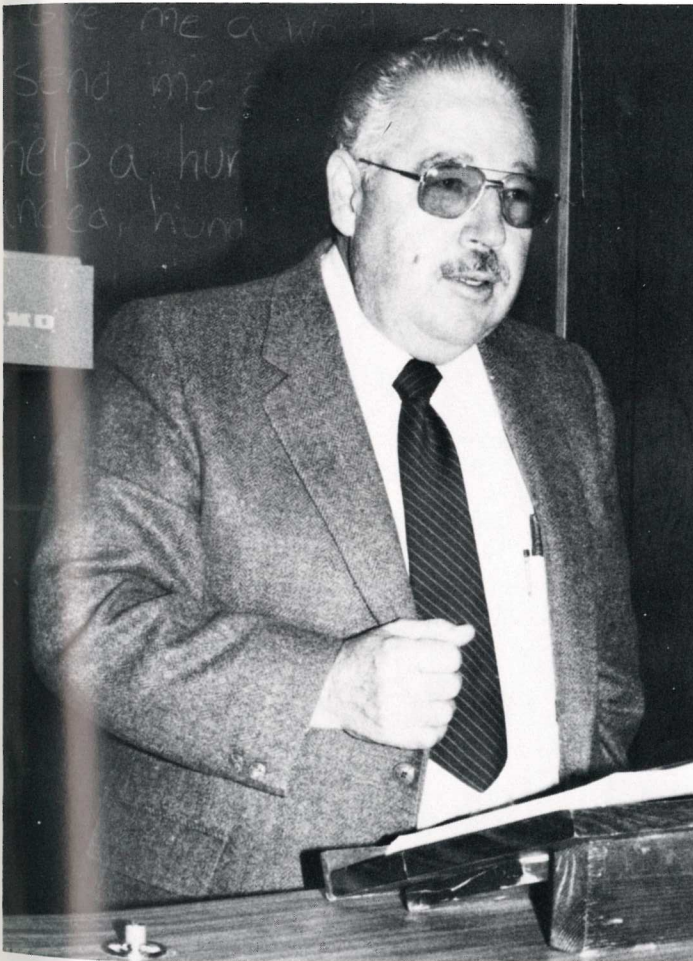

Every semester, Registrar David Zink teaches Sunday School for married couples at Trinity Campus Church. Here, he shares some of his knowledge with senior Rick Christenson.

Human Relations — For the People-Person

The Human Relations minor, combined with the Biblical Studies major, is the best course of study for men and women gifted in working with people and interested in non-pastoral parachurch ministries. It is not intended as a complete undergraduate program for those who want to pursue graduate studies.

"General Psychology" class begins with Dr. Dayton Kingsriter leading the students in a song of worship.

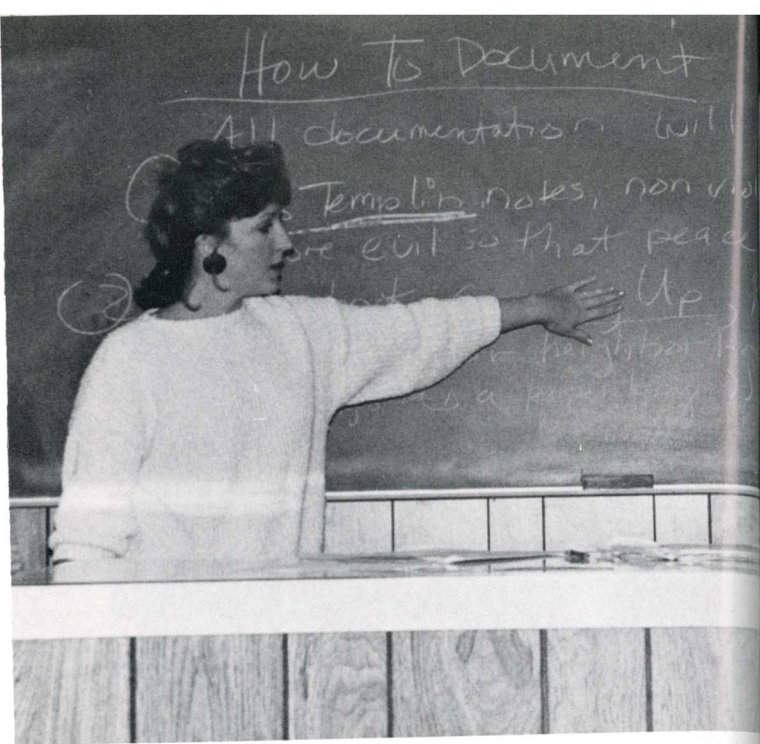

Dr. Edward Strang's knowledge of different races and cultures makes him an expert in the areas of Human Relations and Missions.

Judy Cochran, who teaches "Psychology of the Exceptional Child," knows a lot about children. Before she came to Trinity, she spent years teaching elementary age youth.

General Studies —

Trinity offers well-rounded General Education courses. They provide a basic academic foundation for all students, no matter what degree they are pursuing. The general courses include: Communications, English, History, Language, Philosophy, Physical Education, Psychology, Science and Sociology.

Right: Instructor Julie Talerico makes her point in "English Composition II" class.

During "Introduction to Biology," instructor Dale Hvistendahl introduces the class to the inside of the human body.

Right: Instructor Marilyn Kingsriter teaches in a number of different areas, including English, Elementary Education and Physical Education.

Writing, writing and more writing. These students know that's what "English Composition II" is all about.

Creating A Well-Rounded Leader

Instructor Dr. Edward Strang gives senior Carol Elmgren the help she needs in "Children's Literature."

Below: Learning the "Fundamentals of Speech" has Norman Merrill speechless as instructor Gerald Myers goes over a lesson.

Looks Like Instructors Are People, Too . . .

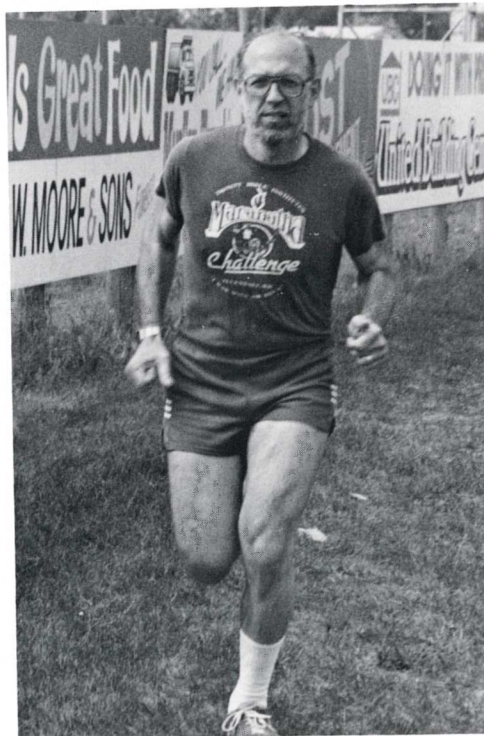

President Lundstrom's sermon illustrations are always full of taste. Here, he asks Brother Maddox to help him warn students about junk food.

In "The Music Man," a community play done last spring, Mrs. Kingsriter proclaims liberty (and laughter, too)!

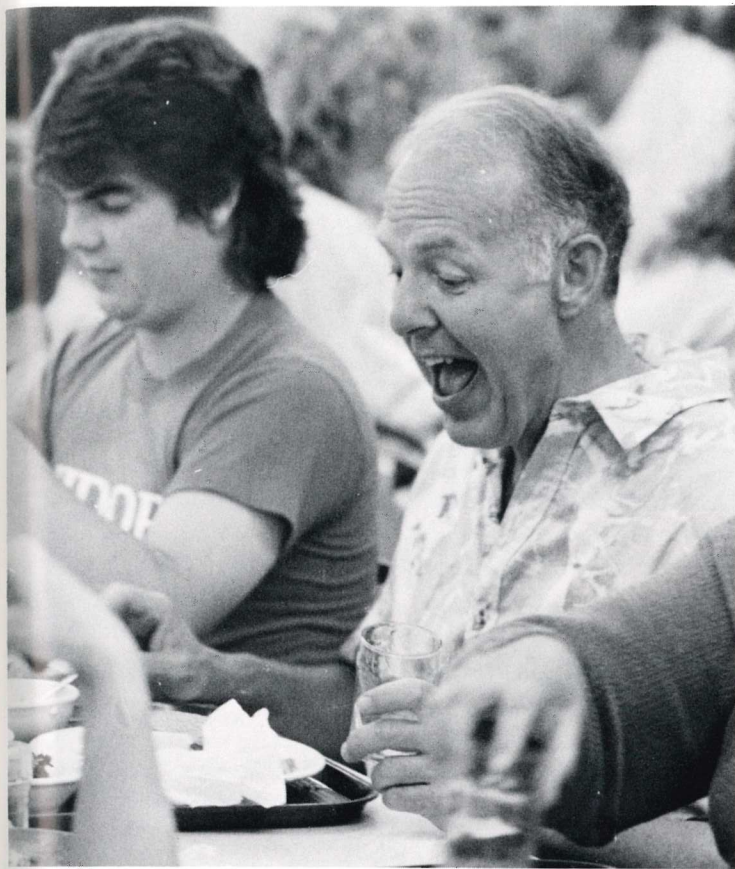

Brother Agee often begins his classes with a solo or two. He may not have the greatest voice in the world, but we still give him the award for "Best Male Vocalist."

After a day of running students through their paces, Brother Shuert often goes for a run.

This scene is from "The Music Man," but Dean Tvedt may often feel like this.

Students enjoy spending time with Speech instructor Gerald Myers, whose jokes often leave everyone in stitches. Even Brother Myers!

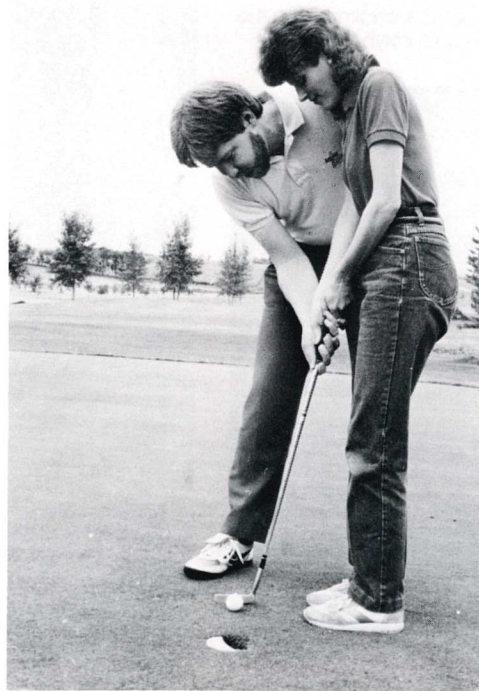

Our Berdie Kovacs is a master at the keyboard. But now Berdie has to master something else, the new phones connecting the organ and piano!

S.A. Plays Key Role In Student Life

The Student Association (S.A.) was a highly visible and active part of Trinity this year. S.A. President Brian Hartman says, "Members of Student Association want students to come to them with any concerns and we'll do our best to meet their needs. I feel confident," he adds, "that I reached my main goal — to promote the students' social, academic and spiritual growth."

Many enjoyed all the activities S.A. sponsored the past year, including "The Fall Festival," "Dress Up Day," the Christmas party and the campus concerts — with artists "Gentle Touch" and "The Continental Singers."

Thanks, S.A., for a great year!

Family Fellowship — Worth Looking Into!

One of the nice things about Trinity — and there are many nice things — is the family atmosphere here! And one of the nice things about family — is the fellowship!

For married couples and those who are single-again, Family Fellowship is a special way to unite and become closer friends and closer to God.

The group holds a number of activities throughout the year, including a Dinner Auction, a Progressive Dinner and a Valentine's Banquet.

Ladies Night At Trinity

At Trinity, everyone knows what Thursday night is. Thursday night is ladies night — a time for single-again and married women to get together and get acquainted. It's a time for prayer, refreshments and a simple word of truth from a special guest speaker. It's WCF — Women's Christian Fellowship.

These women don't waste any time. They keep busy with a number of year-round activities, including managing Trinity's Blessing Basement, a discount store for those hunting bargains. The group conducts a prayer chain for anyone on campus with a serious need. WCF also sponsors an orphan child at Heart Crest Children's Home in Little Rock, Arkansas, along with Charles Clause, missionary to the Philippines, and Paul Joseph, President of Central Indian Bible College.

It's volleyball night at the Fieldhouse for Family Fellowship. Spectators Sheryl Horan, Linda Hartman, Licia Nichols and Cathy Stevenson enjoy the action.

FOCAS — Fun And Fellowship For Trinity Singles

Single adults at Trinity often need to "focas" in on how to meet other people their age and make good friends.

That's what FOCAS — the Fellowship of Christian Adult Singles — is all about — meeting people, having fun and enjoying life!

FOCAS has about 22 members who meet monthly for a delicious dinner and a special activity — like volleyball or bowling.

Some of the highlights the past year included a hayride in the fall and Christmas caroling in the December snow.

"Many of the single members appreciate the group because they're lonely," says senior June Celley, president. "Membership is free — still, you can't put a price tag on fun and fellowship."

The officers of FOCAS are: Row One: Brenda Domsten (Secretary) and Mona LaValley (Activities Coordinator). Row Two: Warren Gallagher (Photographer), Michael McConnell (Vice President) and Rick Pesola (Activities Coordinator).

We're All Called

"Missions Club aims to increase student interest in home and foreign missions," says group leader Bob White, a freshman. "Even if students have no call to the mission field, they are encouraged to pray for and support missionaries."

"Most people think all missionaries eat raw meat and live in huts," he says. "But usually, they work at Bible Colleges — serving as teachers, administrators or librarians."

It's important to realize we're all missionaries — whether we work here or abroad, he adds. "Our mission is to proclaim the Gospel of Jesus — no matter what our occupation!"

Instructor Sam Brelo, adviser for Missions Club, shares his burden for lost souls on the mission field for the students in chapel. In February, Brelo was appointed by the Assemblies of God as a missionary to Arabs in Israel. He and his family leave the states in 1989.

Many exciting missionaries addressed the club this year, including Trinity's Missionary-in-Residence Gladys Myrick.

Members of the Missions Club led worship during the Spring Missions Convention, including freshman Bob White.

Sophomore Beth Markley shows Craig Mellendorf, also a sophomore, regions where she feels led by God to serve as a missionary.

"TNT" Sounds Out For Teachers!

To some, "TNT" may sound like a "blast," and yet it is "fun" to those who belong to what it really stands for, "Trinity Neophite Teachers!"

For Trinity students, teachers are nothing new. But this organization welcomes students who have been accepted into the college's Teacher Education Program and are majoring in Elementary Education.

"TNT" meets a few times each semester to discuss advance teaching concepts often not reviewed in normal classroom study, such as discipline in the classroom, resume writing and field trip planning.

TNT member and senior Lori Sharon discusses her future with junior Diane Moore.

Trinity Neophite Teachers: Row One: Jolene Ballweber, Becky Stuart, Michelle Rondeau and Sheila Masterson. Row Two: Laurie Breuer, Lori Sharon, Tami Spurbeck and Renee Denny. Row Three: Lori Langeliers, Kim Finnamore, Diane Moore and Rita Hicks. Row Four: Lyndon Domsten and faculty adviser Judy Cochran.

Students in "TNT" take turns addressing their peers on current academic issues. Here, junior Tammy Spurbeck leads the discussion.

Resident Assistants Ready For Anything

Brother Tvedt, with "tongue-in-cheek," gives Crystal Leuthold a warning for violating the dress code in the R. A.'s welcome chapel.

Taking a break from rules and regulations, the R.A.'s pray for Dean Tvedt.

Rah, Rah, Rah For The Home Team!

Working to perfect a new routine are: freshman Carrie Vacura, Kim Davis, Christal Laing, Renee Huston, Trudy Davis and Coach Gwen Tvedt.

You've heard of "Let's do the shake," well Trinity students have come up with something a little different for those in the stands — it's called, "Let's do the wave!"

Although the excitement at a home football game usually occurs on the field, a lot of it takes place in the bleachers, too, with the up-beat sounds of the Pep Band.

The fall football cheerleaders are: Standing: Coach Gwen Tvedt, Row Three: Michelle Hulsebus, Kelly Bjornson and Marla Parsons. Row Two: Renee Huston, Tammy Retallick and Trudy Davis (front).

Students Turn Out In Support Of Their Players!

So glad Crystal Leuthold brought her Hallelujah Hankie to the basketball game. Looks like Greg Witter forgot his.

Craig Skrede, Mike Rittthaler, Tom Moody, Shawn Madsen and Sam Moody put on their Sunday best for this game. Shawn took Second Prize in the "Messenger" Photo Contest.

Must be a bad call based on the faces of these Trinity spectators who came to cheer on the Crusaders.

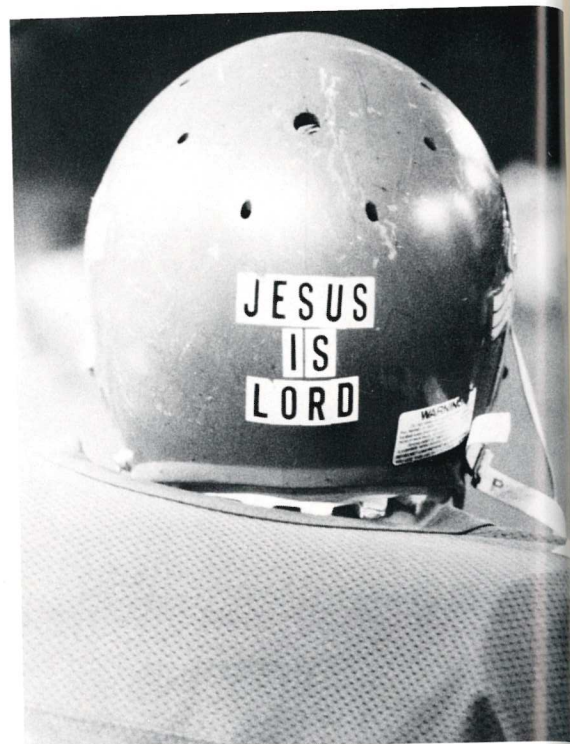

The basketball cheerleaders are always positioned for excellence and action! They are: Row One: Carrie Vacura. Row Two: Renee Huston. Row Three: Kim Davis, Trudy Davis and Christal Laing.

(Fourth Row) Mike Bartel, Brad Phillips, Paul Nohr, Ethan Trower, Rory Kallappa, Jon Thoms, Scott Krabbenhoff, Darin Splittstoesser and Thomas Moody.

This team of many talents demonstrates the "dying cockroach" during a pep assembly.

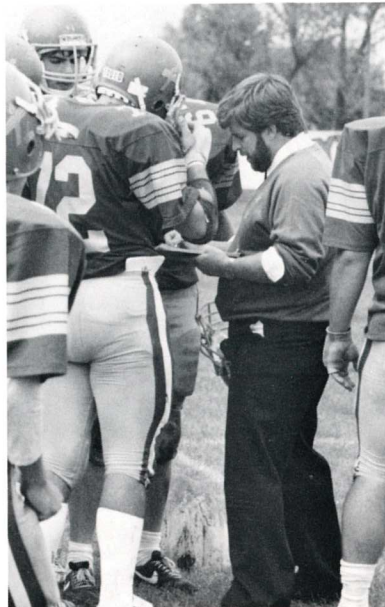

Players Give Best for God!

Trinity's Football Team is only four years old and already looking good! The team has grown not only in numbers but in experience and strength, too, thanks to the many returning players. Senior Linebacker Dennis Wagoner says, "Progress isn't winning all the games — it's developing as players and becoming more consistent. In the four years that I've played football, the number one thing I've learned is to do the very best I can."

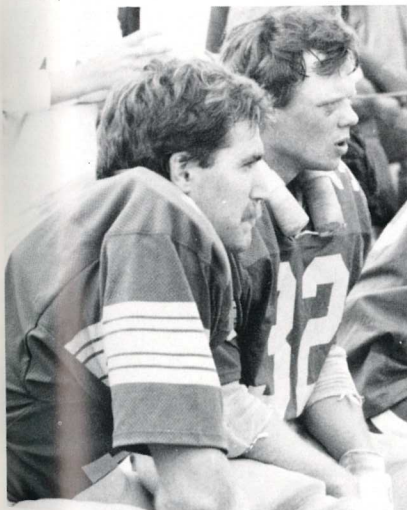

The team's philosophy of "Total Release" emphasizes the importance of each player giving his best effort for the Lord. This attitude is often different from most of the teams Trinity competes with. This gives a great opportunity for Christmas witness — and the team enjoys shining its light!

Brad Phillips warms up on the sideline before leading the team in the game as quarterback.

Coach Kath draws out the next plan of attack.

As the battle rages on, Roger Willis and Kyle Peterson watch from the sidelines.

With fancy footwork, freshman Larry Agee glides through the Pillsbury Baptist defense.

Champions Once Again!

The Women's Volleyball Team competed against some tough teams. The players say that the reason they became the National Bible College Athletic Association Champions is because they put God first in every game! Their goal was to enter each game with prayerful hearts and a humble attitude — showing Jesus on the courts. "People would come up to us after a game and ask what makes us different," says senior Jolene Ballweber. "They wondered where our special team spirit came from. I'll never forget the feeling I had when we were one point away from winning the championship game. It was glory! I shouted, 'This is it girls. Thank you Jesus!'"

The crowd watches in suspense as Debbie Willis goes up for another spike.

When Kathy Lyon plays, she puts everything into it. This serve is sure to go places.

Pointing out a play, Coach Wagler gives correction and encouragement.

Coach Wagler and Captain Jolene Ballweber present the first place trophy to President Lundstrom.

Scoreboard Shows Trinity A Notch Above the Rest!

The girls demonstrate how dull their lives would be if King Jesus wasn't their "All in All."

Going The Extra Mile!

TRACK:

"I went out for track because I love the outdoors," says freshman Tamara Smithson. "But I don't run to win metals — I do it for the Lord, to be a witness to my team and the opposing teams."

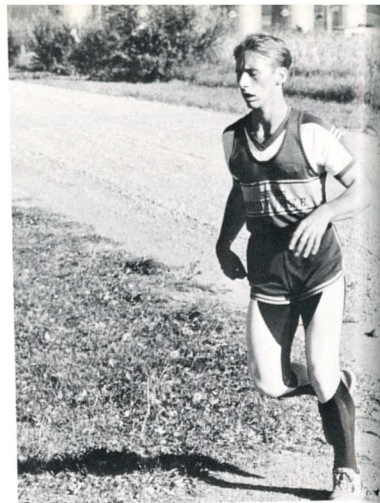

"We're blessed to have Coach Tatum as our leader — he's a real inspiration. He lifts us up when we get down on ourselves. We also pray together as a team — and that's always a great encouragement!"

CROSS COUNTRY:

"Cross Country is hard work — it takes discipline, patience and consistency," says Marilyn Nelson. "Still, I love the exercise and competition," she says. "We have a chance to show our opponents that we're different. We pray before the meet in front of the crowd, and we don't get mad after losing a race. We also try to cheer on other runners, letting the love of Christ shine through!"

Joined closely by competitors in this windy Cross Country meet are Marilyn Nelson, Rebecca Davison and Carolyn Nelson.

With each step Patrick Gray chants, "cross country is fun, cross country is fun, cross country is fun . . ."

Cross country members Ben Thompson, Ken Davis, Patrick Gray, Gerald Doerr, coach John Marstaeller, Carolyn & Marilyn Nelson and Rebecca Davison sing at the fall pep rally!

Witnessing One-on-One

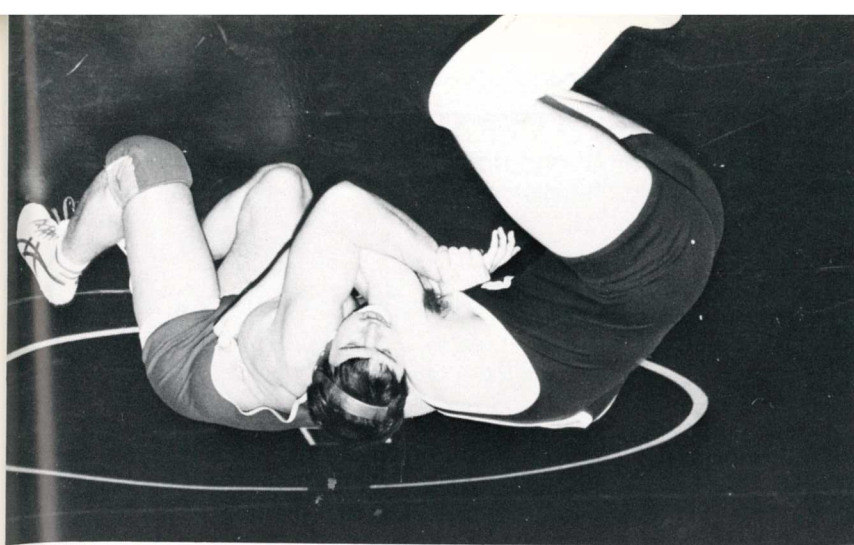

"Wrestling builds character — it can make you a man of God," says junior Brian Worthing. "There are times after a long day at school when I don't feel like going to practice or wrestling at a tournament — but I know the Lord wants me to have the right attitude. I want to do my best, no matter how I feel."

"The real challenge in wrestling is not just pinning your opponent," Worthing adds, "but competing in a Christ-like way. The victory is the witness!"

The Men's Wrestling Team: Kneeling: John Busch Standing: Coach Dave Young, Tim Douglas and Steve Meixl.

Jonathan "Squid" Busch gets ready to pin his opponent in his tough duel.

Freshman Tim Douglas is only moments away from flipping his opponent and going for the take!

Steve "Camel on Ice" Slater eyes the rim and gets ready to display his new trick!

"Who's moving the ladder!" screams "Phi Slamma Jamma" — also known as freshman Mike Bartz.

Fast Action On The Court!

"I enjoy playing basketball, and I love teamwork," says junior Mike Ritthaler. "Playing basketball helps me grow physically and spiritually — it builds my character. I'm not just playing for myself, but for the Glory of God — I thank Him for all the talent He's given me."

According to Ritthaler, the best thing about playing basketball at Trinity is that all share the same goal — lifting up the Lord. "We have a special unity," he says. "It's a bond you usually can't feel on a secular college team."

Planning his next move under the watchful eye of an NDSU — Bottineau player is junior Mike Ritthaler.

Trinity's Lady Hoopsters!

"Because the world is sports-crazy — it can be reached for Christ through athletics," says Michelle Rondeau, a junior.

"Our team has one thing in common, we love Jesus Christ and play to exalt Him!"

Rondeau adds, "Actions speak louder than words, and our playing can be a witness. It's super to play on a Christian team — the support and encouragement are always there. I also have made friendships that will last way after the season is over!"

The renowned and highly acclaimed COACH KEITH WAGLER demonstrates the Lady Crusader shuffle to the women's basketball team.

Surrounding players appear awestruck as junior Kathy Lyon drives it home with speed and intensity.

Right: Freshman Dawn Madsen is met with opposing eyes as she aims for the bucket.

It appears as if #41 is ordering Michelle Hulsebus to "Stop in the name of the law!" Looks like Michelle is an "outlaw" — she goes for the shot anyway!

Intramurals — Come As You Are!

Casual. Dress as you feel. Come as you are. Play the best you can! This is what playing intramurals at Trinity is all about. Oh, it's also fun, often muddy, sometimes embarrassing and surprisingly competitive.

There's plenty of action for the Saturday active: In the fall, there's men's football and women's softball. In the spring, there's men's basketball, women's volleyball and co-ed volleyball.

This year the challenge got a little closer to "home," with dorm floors picking up teams and competing against each other.

For those keeping score, the fall season winners were 2nd Floor Kesler — football champions — 1st Floor Liechty — softball champions. Congratulations teams!

It looks like a beauty! Senior Amy Olson, at bat, goes for a base hit for 1st floor Liechty.

Junior Steve McKinney, of 3rd Floor Kesler, does some fancy footwork to gain yardage against North Wing.

Casual Sports For All To Enjoy!

Junior Lonny Moeller breaks through the defense and goes for a touchdown for 1st Floor Kesler.

Val Armour, a freshman, pitches for 2nd Floor Davidson. Here, she tries for a strikeout.

First Floor Liechty took the championship for the Softball Tournament. Team members are: Row One: Jane Filler, Joel Staubaugh and Jody Skalet. Row Two: Tracy Carlson, Amy Olson, Sheila Masterson, Tami Spurbeck and Dawn Madsen.

Sports Fever Burns At Trinity

Keeping an eye on the ball are Tracy Carlson, Terri Franck, Marie Halter, Jane Filler and Sheila Masterson of Liechty's First Floor.

Renee Denny gets ready to power hit the ball as Second Floor teammates Rita Hicks (left) and Michelle Rondeau look on.

Ben Thompson and Todd Forrest of Third Floor Kesler are out to stop Second Floor's Brad Philip.

Dedication

We Love You Brother Jones!

"He's been a faithful adviser for three years and a great example of love, sincerity and servitude," says Trinity's senior class.

The seniors chose to dedicate the 1988 "Messenger" to David Jones, a Bible and General Education instructor.

The class of '88 calls him real. "He's always helpful, friendly and warm, and he has a great sense of humor."

Brother Jones has been on the faculty since 1984. Before coming to Trinity, he pastored for nearly 25 years.

Brother Jones always takes time out for a student in need — despite his busy schedule. Here, he shares a laugh with junior Ken Smith.

Brother Jones and his wife Mary enjoy a walk across campus. For the first time last fall, Mrs. Jones began teaching at the college. Her course is called, "Practical Living For Ladies."

Brother Jones is a powerful preacher and a man of prayer. He is a man who truly shines his light!

Appreciation

He Has A True Servant's Heart

When it comes to being appreciated, the senior class tips its hat to Emil Middlestead!

Emil has worked in Trinity's Maintenance Department since 1984.

The seniors call him "a humble and faithful servant, who is dedicated to Trinity."

"He does a great job and is always diligent and understanding. He demonstrates true Christian character and always reflects the light of Christ."

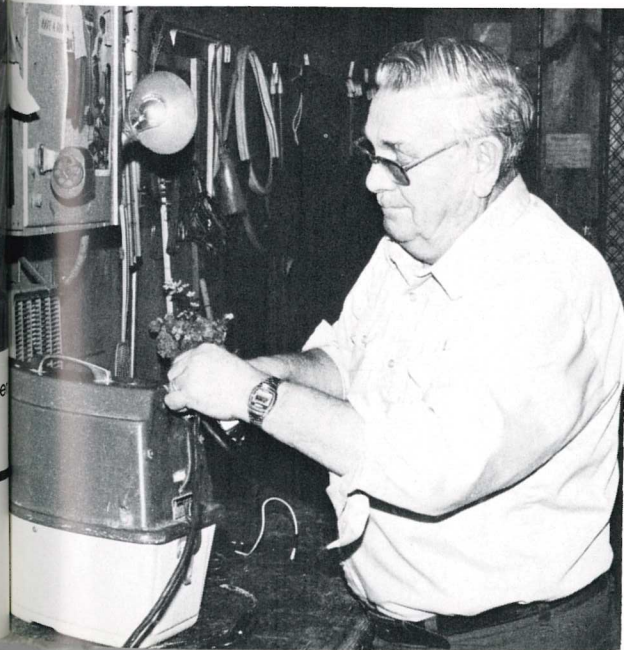

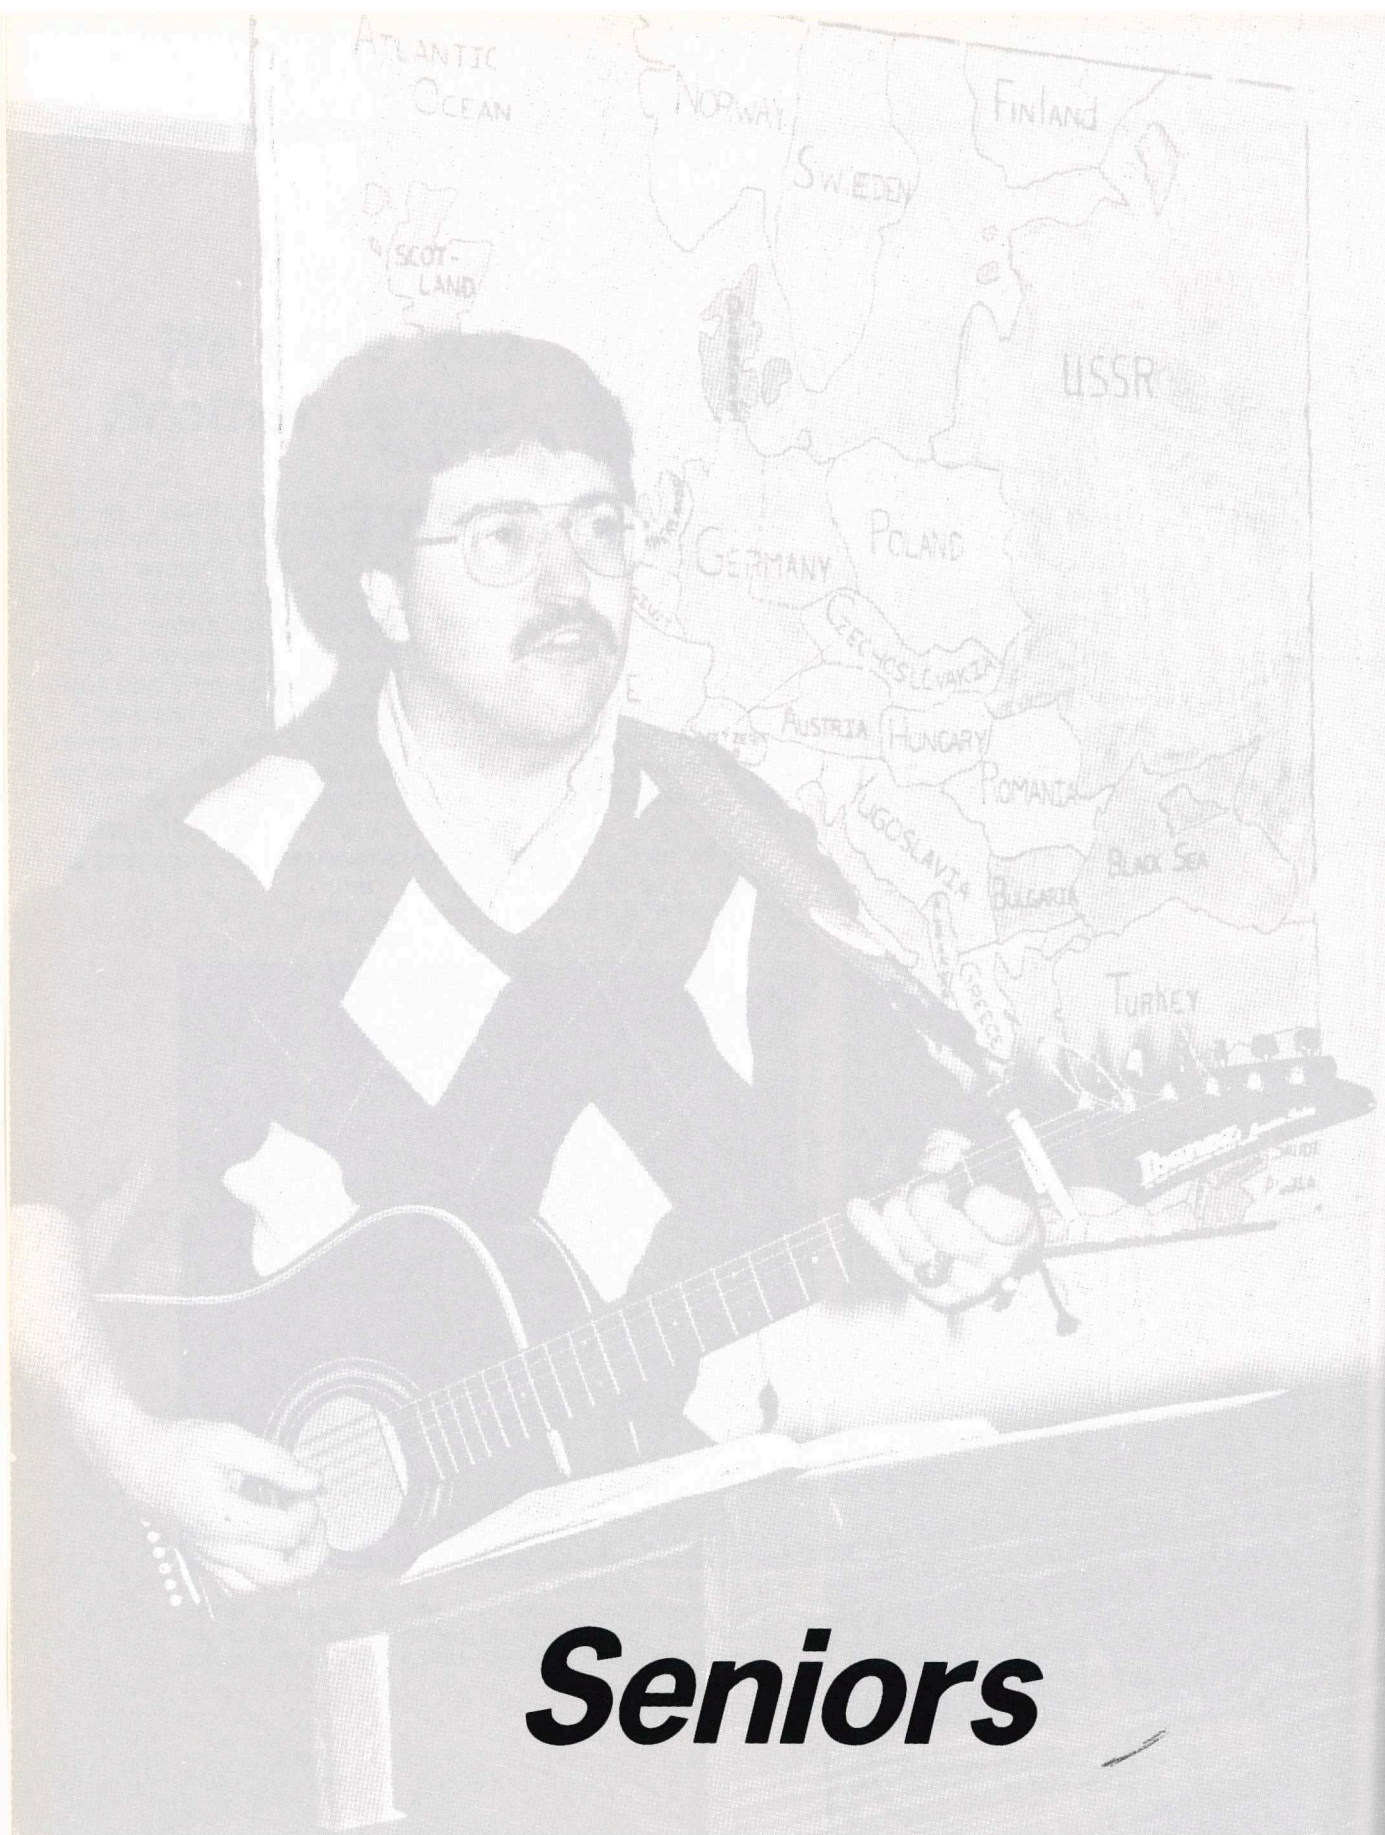

Emil and his lifelong companion, wife Viola, look as if their love is as fresh and true as it was on their wedding day, October 20, 1946.

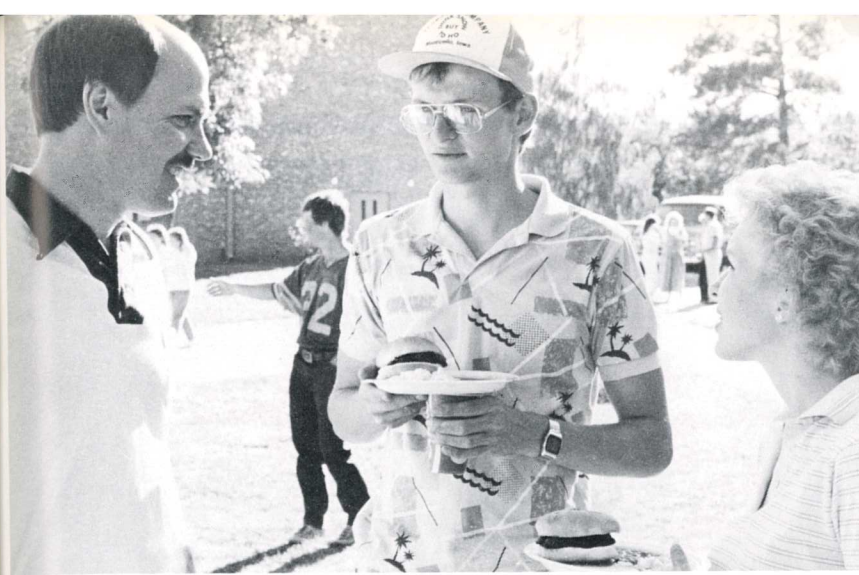

Plenty of cold temperatures and fallen snow kept Emil working outside in many a day.

Students appreciate a clean campus — and Emil is always making sure it stays that way!

Seniors

Executive Vice-President S. Robert Maddox chats with senior Lonnie Peterson and sophomore Marie Halter at the freshmen orientation cookout.

It's a long way from Brazil to Porto Alegre and not even the bright flash of Lincoln Engelbert's camera could wake up this tired bunch. Lincoln's aim paid off, too! This snapshot took fourth prize in the annual "Messenger" Photo Contest!

Garrison — Everyone's "Mom"

The Senior Class of 1988 remembers Kaye Garrison, a Trinity faculty member from 1968-83, who died on May 15, 1987, in Hingham, Massachusetts. She was 56.

Garrison taught Christian Ministries and her husband, Robert, taught Biblical Studies and History. Both directed the student music group "Troubadors" for 14 years.

The seniors write: "She was a woman 'on-fire' for God. She didn't just teach us, she ministered to us. When she spoke in chapel, her words always encouraged us. We forever will be blessed by the faithful and godly life she so willingly shared."

Kaye was always a hard worker and dedicated professional — never without a smile — and never too busy to talk or pray with a student.

Moments to rest and catch her breath came few and far between for Kaye, who was always on the go!

Her students saw her as more than a teacher — she was a friend, a counselor, someone always there!

Wead — A Million Dollar Memory!

He took a $1 bill and turned it into a miraculous new beginning for Trinity. But the legacy Dr. Roy Wead leaves behind today is a priceless one.

The former Trinity president, from 1968-82, died Easter Sunday morning in his hometown of Springfield, Missouri. He was 70.

He is perhaps best known for launching Trinity's multi-million dollar miracle, when he offered the state $1 for the former branch campus of the University of North Dakota — Trinity's current home in Ellendale. The deal was signed in 1972, and by 1975, a soaring 450 students enrolled.

The seniors always will remember Wead as a godly man and a tremendous role model. "He gave 100 percent of himself in all he did. His life was of victory — he shined his light, and the world was warmed."

Roy Wead was a man driven by compassion, motivated by love and guided by God.

Two Trinity presidents — Roy Wead and Lowell Lundstrom. President Lundstrom saw Wead a few days before he died. "He'd been praying," President Lundstrom says, "and I think he'd experienced a bit of heaven in his soul, because he said to me, 'I've been on the mountaintop and it's glorious!'"

Wead and his wife, Peggy, visited Trinity in 1986. This special occasion marked his last visit to the place he loved so dearly.

A photograph of a snowy landscape. In the foreground, a large, dark tree trunk stands on the left side. The ground is covered in snow with some footprints. In the background, there are other trees and a large, dark building. The sky is overcast.
